Insecta Conference

14-16 May 2024 Potsdam, Germany

The workshop "Presentation of CIPROMED and ADVAGROMED Projects" took place during the May 14 -16, INSECTA 2024 conference in Potsdam, Germany. This significant annual conference connects numerous research initiatives with the aim of enhancing the resilience of the insect industry.

At the workshop, which was attended by 150 participants, Dr. Laura Gasco and Dr. Christos Athanassiou presented the Advagromed and Cipromed projects, respectively, focusing on the circular and sustainable use of insects as livestock feed. After that, participants were engaged in a short, interactive questionnaire led by Dr. Ilaria Biasato about the challenges that the insect market is currently facing.

The event also featured a "gourmet" section where attendees could participate in a panel test about the tasting of insect-based bread. Two types of bread were produced: one with wheat flour (Emmer-Einkorn) and one with rye flour (Dinkel-Roggen), each of them being also prepared including 10% of Tenebrio molitor meal.
